

junction with the Center for the Study of Alternative and Radical Forms of Education.

provides information on establishing and maintaining schools for those considering 1972-3.

Following Hentoff will be Lucia Vorys, Board President of the Metropolitan School in Columbus, who will speak a 10:30 a.m. on "Alternative Schools in Ohio: An Overview."

Saturday afternoon sessions include discussions and workshops on various topics

Robins leaves WRUW

By RICHARD BADLER

Lucy Robins, Mather senior, resigned from her position of station manager of the campus radio station, WRUW-FM, this week.

She explained, "I only need four credits to graduate. After 18 years as a student, I want a little time out in the world before three years of law school. It has nothing to do with the station."

Her replacement, she announced, will be Andy Cohn. Robins said about the Adelbert senior, "I have confidence in his ability to do the job. He has only been around one and a half years but the fact that everyone at the station trusts him shows how competent he is."

Robins was very reluctant to quit the station. "I hate to quit," she stated, "There's a great bunch of people there. This year is one of the best. Many problems have not been solved yet, but this is not for want of trying. We are consistently moving forward. The station is one of the activities on campus that attracts consistently large groups of people."

Robins noted that her staff

Lucy Robins. (Photo by Phil Soroky)

has been working hard, as a whole, from the start.

"We have good people pulling together. Because of this, we have done some things we have never been able to do before. We now have a monthly program guide, and as of this week, we are on the air all day," she said.

Seminar open to public

By BRAD STARK

Vital business and industry leaders will team up to tackle as many of the infinitely numerous aspects of the energy dilemma as time will allow tomorrow, at CWRU.

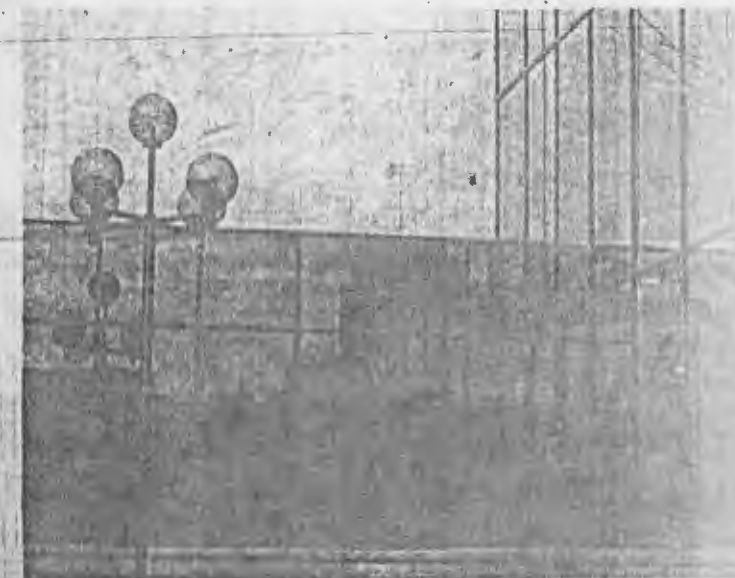

Former Case President, Dr. T. Keith Glennan, who is currently the Ambassador to the International Atomic Energy Agency, will head a panel of four eminent men addressing the seminar in Strosacker Auditorium from 9:30 to Noon.

This International authority will give way to President Karl H. Rudolph, The Illuminating Co.; President Alton W. Whitehouse, The Ohio Standard Oil Co. and President G.J. Tankersly, The East Ohio Gas Co. This local braintrust will represent the electric power, petroleum and coal and gas industries respectively.

The seminar is part of the continuing program of industry-university liaison through Case Associates, a group of more than fifty member companies

(continued on page 6)

The new Hallinen Center, now open, completes the religious shopping center between Mather Building and Euclid Ave. According to George Burke, lay director of the center, the building, designed by Richard Fleischman and Associates, will hold an "open house" a week from tomorrow. (Photo by Phil Soroky)

UUSG

By BILL McCROSKY

The UUSG budgeted nearly $35,000 for next semester's activities Tuesday night.

The budget was passed with little debate. The only proposal that met with much debate was the budget for speaker's bureau. Mike Silberstein argued that more money should be allocated to speakers who interest only a few students so students would be given a more "diverse" selection of speakers. "Since this is supposedly an educational institution," said Silberstein, "speakers should present more diverse points of view."

Sheldon Stein objected saying that Silberstein's objective was to get more money for organizations such as SMC, which Silberstein is a member. Stein's accusation remained unresolved, and the budget passed without a change in the amount of money going to speakers of limited interest.

Besides taking care of budgeting matters, the UUSG

12/1/72